Target audience: Secondary school library staff

This course is designed to equip School Librarians with the knowledge they need to comply with the new OFSTED guidelines for School Libraries.

Patricia Metham was OFSTED's English lead and has a very strong sympathy for School Librarians and their work. She has had a very rich and varied career, some of which is detailed below:

2006-2014 Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools

2007-2014 English Subject Survey Team

2012-2013 National Advisor for English

2013-2014 National Lead for English and Literacy covering EYFS to KS5

2005-2006 Creator and leader of cross-curricular projects for KS2 and KS3 pupils in Brighton

2002-2005 Principal of The Regent's School

1997-2002 Head Mistress of Roedean School, Brighton

1992-1997 Head of Ashford Girls' School, Kent

1987-1992 Head of Farlington School, Sussex

Patricia left Ofsted in August 2014 to work as a freelance consultant. Currently her main commitments are within East Sussex, providing strategic support for schools causing concern and also, as an English and literacy specialist, drawing up a review and support framework specifically for English and literacy in the county. She also still gives keynote presentations and runs workshops on any aspect of English and literacy across England - most recently on reading.
